

The FCC should retain the current rules for ownership of the media. It will do great harm to further concentrate media ownership. Too few already control the major media sources. The more voices heard the better.